Some Advocate Return to Street Watering, the Town to Do the Sprinkling-Charles Murray's Ead Accident -Millionaire Singer in Critical Condition at Watch Hill-Other Matters.

Nearly all the streets of Westerly lave been treated with an oily mixture and only for the purpose of laying the fust but also in the hope of preserving the macadam and gravel roads. In some parts of the town the stuff has served well as a dust preventive, but a Broad street (Dixon square) it has browen a failure. About three weeks given oil treatment and for a time was given oil treatment and for a time there was no dust. But this good effect gradually waned and on Friday there was fust as much inconvenience from the dust clouds as before the treet was sprinkled with oil. In consequence garden hose were brought. sequence gerden hose were brought into requisition and the street water-soaked. If the same oily material is to be used by order of the highway committee Broad street must be treated at least every two weeks or livere will be no permanent abatement of the dust nulsance.

will be no permanent abatement of the dust nulsance.

There are many who express opinion that the more effective way to lay the dust in the business section of the town is to return to the old water sprinkling cart plan, on the ground that it is not only more practical but economical as well, but in this respect the highway committee is in a quandary.

The street watering was a private enterprise of William Rook and he was recompensed by the property owners or tenants in front of whose premises the streets were watered. The intro-the streets were watered. The intro-duction of oil drove Mr. Rook out of that business and he has sold his horses and harness to James A. Welch and purchased a restaurant. So Mr. Hook cannot be called to the service again. He still has the modern water-ing cast.

A large real estate owner suggests that the town purchase the cart and sprinkle the streets when necessary, using the town's horses and employes are the work adding that inasmuch to do the work, adding that inasmuch as the highway committee have at the town's expense abated in part the dust nuisance in other sections of the town that like provision should be made for the business section, and without direct expense to the merchants.

Charles Murray, employed by the R. A. Sherman's Sons' company, was so severely injured while at work in the planing mill Friday morning that he will be incapacitated for a long time. His right hand was caught in the machinery and mangled and crushed. Dr. John L. May was summoned and dressed the hand and is of opinion that no part of the hand will be lost. The back of the hand was severely torn and several stitches were taken to close the wounds.

Murray suffered much pain, was weak from the loss of blood and was extremely nervous from fear of losing his right hand. He is unable to explain how his hand happened to get caught in the machinery, but attributes it to his own carelessness.

Maude and Edna Dayis, cousins of Jefferson Dayis, the late president of the Southern Confederacy, have been re-engaged by George H. Brennan for The Clansinan. This will be their fifth consecutive season in the celebrated Dixon play.

There isn't the sign of a problem about George Broadhurst's The Dollar Mark. It's just a play of real human interest, built on real human nature especially that rather common phase if human mature, the love of money, and more especially that sturdy manhood marked by love of one's fellows, which is not quite so prominent as the other phase, but which one likes to feel is not really uncommon. It's a good, strong, wholesome play, in the opinion of those who saw its first presentation in New York.—New York Herald.

One of the fortunate actresses this year is Henrietta Crosman with does not have to look for a new vehicle because she will appear the entire season in Sham, the play that was so successful in New York last year. Throughout the country there seems to be a great demand for Miss Crosman in this sterling success and it may be that she will even consent to appear in Sham for the next two years. The nour opens at Powers theater in Chicago about the first of September and all the cities of the cast will be given a change to see Shaw. The fair west and south will not be visited find! the serson following.

At one time in his career, says the Missical Courier. Hans von Renlow was engaged as private muste tutor to the three danghiers of a Polish nobleman. Von Beulow lived on his employer's estate, gave each one of the fair z'o a lesson every single day, and played for the noble and his guests in the exercines. For this work Buelow tocking the sum of 490 thalers (1200) a year. Later at Stern's conservatory in Berlin, Von Beulow was given the same salary for teaching nine hours a week. For each extra hour's teaching beyond that time he was allowed one traler—or 75 cents in American money. No progress in music? Compare Von Beulow's beggarly pittance of that period with the salary paid Godowsky today at the Royal Vienna conservatory—$21 an hour.

Should Be Careful. There will be a special issue of the two-cent postage stamp to commemorate the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The P. O. D. should be wary lest the artist's initials are smuggled on it.—Providence Journal.
